MRS. HAINS TO FIGHT CHARGES

GOVERNOR GUILD AGAIN STRICKEN

Mrs. Claudia Libby Hains, wife of Captain Peter C. Hains, slayer of William E. Annis, is going to New York next week to refute charges made against her by the attorneys for her husband and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains.

Dispatches from New York to the Boston American quote District Attorney Darcin of Queens County as saying to-day that Mrs. Hains has agreed to confer with him. He declined to say whether or not she will be called as a witness against her husband. She is incensed by the issuance of the "Claudia" letters, which, she declares, to be forgeries and will co-operate with the New York authorities to punish her husband and his brother for what she terms his lies.

BARD OF HIGH ROCK DEAD BY ASPHYXIATION

Aged Singer and Poet, Victim of Leaking Gas, Found Unconscious at His Home.

LYNN, Oct. 29.—John W. Hutchinson, Lynn's octogenarian singer and poet, known the country over for his work in abolition days, friend of Abraham Lincoln, Wendell Phillips, Garrison and others of their day, was asphyxiated by gas early to-day in his home on High Rock, dying within an hour.

Mrs. Hutchinson was awakened by the odor of the gas, which was escaping from a gas stove in her husband's apartment. She found him lying unconscious on the floor face downward near the door, to which he had crawled in an effort to get to the fresh air. Dr. James Keown of the Emergency Hospital, which is close by, answered her call by telephone and worked for an hour over the aged singer, but without success.

It is believed that Mr. Hutchinson arose early with the intention of taking a sponge bath. A sponge and towel were found at hand and he had gotten a pitcher of water. But the room being cold he had first undertaken to light the gas stove and had been overcome by heart failure, it is thought, after he had turned the gas on. Dr. Keown says that Mr. Hutchinson's heart had been weak for some time.

Mrs. Hutchinson occupies a room next to that of her late husband's, and it was the odor of gas that took her into his apartment. She saw him in a kneeling posture on the floor beside the stove and exclaimed:

"Why, John, what are you doing? You ought not to try to light the stove!"

She received no response to her questions when he made no reply. She called Fred Spring, caretaker of the Hutchinson house, who, with his wife, occupies quarters in the basement of the house. Dr. Keown was called by telephone and when he arrived ten or fifteen minutes later he found that Mrs. Hutchinson and Spring had carried the dying man down stairs to the front door, which they had opened to give him plenty of air. He died at about 6 o'clock without recovering consciousness.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson attended a Christian Science meeting last evening and he was in fine spirits when they returned home. The funeral will be held on Sunday.

SCORES ON IVERNIA HURT BY TIDAL WAVE

BIG CUNARD LINER ALMOST SWAMPED BY HUGE WALL OF WATER.

While one day out of Queenstown a monster tidal wave swept over the great Cunard liner Ivernia, which docked in East Boston at noon to-day, and knocked down and injured more than a score of passengers.

Thousands of tons of water literally swamped the liner, iron stanchions, funnels, ventilators and hatches were swept overboard. The ship rocked to and fro.

Everyone on deck was knocked down. Below deck, especially in the steerage, there was confusion. Passengers were buried from one side of their staterooms to the other, and nearly everyone on board was more or less hurt or bruised.

Six of the passengers were so injured that they had to be put in the care of the ship's surgeon, Dr. Robert Bruce. When the ship got in to-day they were sufficiently recovered to permit their removal to the hospital quarters of the immigrant station. They were all in the steerage.

Their names and injuries were as follows:

Carlga Dahl, leg injured.
Annie Twomey, right hip injured.
Annie Larsen, right knee fractured.
John W. Crompton, right leg sprained.
Marin Mothern, head crushed.

Captain Denison said the ship was speeding along at a good rate in what seemed to be a perfectly calm sea. The passengers sat about the decks and promenaded, while the immigrants forward were engaged in the usual sports, dancing, etc.

Suddenly the lookout gave a cry of alarm. Not more than 500 feet ahead of them arose a great wall of water fifty feet high which, with curling crest, rushed forward to meet the ship.

The crew approaching and the ship under full headway going to meet it brought both together within a few seconds. As the giant wave hit the ship it completely buried her, save for the tips of her funnels, from sight, and for a full minute it seemed to all aboard that she was on her way to the bottom.

She trembled from stem to stern, keeled over at an angle of forty-five degrees and then slowly came up.

The water flowed off, and it was a marvel, the captain said, that half of the steerage passengers were not washed overboard. Once they were swept backward and forward in their enclosed space and battered about.

The stewards and crew ran about picking up the injured men, women and children, and for ten minutes were in utter confusion. The passengers in the first cabin were not injured, but were terribly frightened.

14 SAVED FROM DEATH BY BABY

A baby's wailing aroused fourteen persons in the apartment house at No. 5 Willow Park, just off Shawmut avenue, early to-day and saved them from death by fire and smoke.

Three families live in the house. Mrs. Leopold Leemer heard her baby crying, and when she got to the infant's crib found the room filling with smoke. She gave the alarm, and her husband hurried from door to door, rousing the other tenants in the house.

They were almost overcome by the fumes of the flames and smoke and got to the street with great difficulty. Several of them had to crawl out on hands and knees with mouths close to the floor to get what little air remained there.

HELD BY JUDGE FOR THEFT OF HORSE

James Sweeney and Thomas Murphy were held by Judge Wentworth in $500 to-day for the Grand Jury on the charge of stealing a horse and wagon from James Cullen, agent for the Massachusetts Breweries Company of No. 80 Arch street. The police say that the prisoners found the team on Minot street and drove to Waltham, where they tried to sell it to Thomas Kelley, a liveryman.

Rain to-night, and Friday and colder. Light northerly and cold easterly winds, increasing.

MARRY AS BIG STEAMER DOCKS

Among the several hundred who anxiously waited at the Cunard line pier to-day for the steamer Ivernia to be warped into her berth none was more anxious than Summer McAvoy, a young Englishman, from West Lynn, who was awaiting the arrival of his fiancee, Miss Agnes Thornley, a rose-cheeked lass from Barrow, Lancashire. They were married on the ship by Wesk. Parson James A. Burns. Miss Margaret Cutter, a friend of Miss Thornley, was bridesmaid, and Edward Bowden and his wife, Chelsea friends of the bridegroom, were also present.

There were three other bridesmaids on the ship, but none wished aboard to be married.

FINED $15 FOR CIGARETTE SALE

Albert C. Trefry, seven years old, and George Stone, nine, were having a cigarette smoke fest in a Columbus avenue doorway when Patrolman Campbell found them. He asked where they had got the cigarettes and they said they had bought them from Peter Schufutas at No. 313, that thoroughfare.

The policeman arrested Schufutas and in the Municipal Court to-day Judge Dunn fined him $15 for selling cigarettes to minors.

Strength Fails and Chief Executive Is Prostrated, but Latest Illness Is Not Believed to Be Serious.

Governor Guild, who had just recovered from a sickness so serious that his life hung by a thread for several days, is ill again and confined to his Marlboro street home.

While it is not believed that his present illness is dangerous, it is regarded at the State House to warrant Private Secretary Dean in issuing an official statement. Mr. Dean says:

"Governor Guild's eagerness to resume the full work and responsibility of his office has been too much for his strength. He is confined to his home by an attack of gastritis. It is not regarded as of a serious character, though it will keep him from the State House for the remainder of the week."

Governor Guild spoke at the Catholic centenary celebration at Symphony Hall last night and received an ovation.

He was ill for weeks with a complication of diseases and it was not until the approach of Summer that he was able to go to his Nahant home. While there he was relieved of the responsibility of his office by Acting Governor Draper. He was ambitious to return to work as soon as possible, however, and retained his interest in public affairs when unable to be at the State House. While convalescing he took the keenest interest in the efforts of his friends to have him given the Republican nomination for Vice-President in Chicago.

MRS. SILSBY, FREED ON BAIL, WEEPS FOR JOY

WOMAN ACCUSED OF KILLING CLINTON CHILDS RELEASED IN $3,000.

Mrs. Ida A. Silsby, awaiting trial at the East Cambridge jail on the charge of manslaughter for the shooting of Clinton E. Childs on the night of September 24, was released in $3,000 bail at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. The bail was furnished by five bonds men including Eben Silsby, her husband, who returned to his home in Waltham two days ago after a mysterious disappearance immediately following the tragedy.

Mrs. Silsby's bail was originally set for $5,000, but a reduction to $3,000 was secured to-day. City Solicitor Carey of Waltham, representing Mrs. Silsby, appeared before Judge Dana Lace in the latter court and asked for the reduction. No objection was made by the district attorney's office and the party then appeared before Judge Bond in the civil court at East Cambridge.

Mrs. Silsby was sent for and entered court accompanied by Sheriff Fairbairn. She appeared in the best of spirits until her husband and the surety bondsmen stood to be sworn when, weeping bitterly, she burst into sobs. When she was sworn she stood beside her husband with her arm in his. After the formalities she shook hands with each of the bondsmen, a fact which furnished Mrs. Silsby's friends much food for comment. Among those who furnished Mrs. Silsby's bail were her husband, Elias Silsby, E. A. Smith of Somerville, Oliver A. Hallett of Waltham, C. K. Mitchell of Stoneham and W. A. Lamphier of Waltham.

"I feel good. It is fine to be in the open air again," said Mrs. Silsby, as she left the jail. With her husband and W. A. Lamphier they started for home.

Mrs. Silsby has a 9-year-old daughter at home. She's got everything all ready for her mother. Oh, how happy I'll be to-night when I meet her and my poor boy. They were all kind to me at the jail. Sheriff Fairbairn let me work in the laundry when the loneliness of it all nearly drove me mad. I am grateful to all my good friends."

TO BEGIN WORK ON DUDLEY AVENUE

One hundred West Roxbury residents today visited Mayor Hibbard at City Hall and asked him to approve the acceptance by the city of Dudley avenue, Roslindale. The Mayor promised that part of the work would be done immediately. The acceptance of the street was recommended by the Board of Street Commissioners three months ago.

BROTHER'S WIFE IS SCORED BY T. J. HAINS

BROTHER OF ANNIS'S SLAYER DEFENDS HIMSELF IN BITTER STATEMENT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—T. Jenkins Hains, charged with his brother with the murder of William E. Annis, has written and signed a remarkable statement defending himself and his brother, which he has given out for publication. The statement was written by him in his cell in the Queens County jail.

In it he bitterly assails Claudia F. Hains, his brother's wife, and defends himself as a man of whom his family is proud. With his skill as a trained writer of magazine articles and books, he dramatically declares how he guarded over Captain Hains, doing his duty as a brother and a faithful son.

He says the fate of Annis at the door of the lawyer for Mrs. Hains in his attack upon Hains and the attorney who handled Mrs. Hains's defence of her divorce action brought against her, the indicted man displays most pronounced nerve.

The story of T. Jenkins Hains, one of the most remarkable ever penned by a man awaiting trial for his life, follows:

By T. Jenkins Hains.

Of course, it is useless to say that I am amazed at being in jail to be tried for murder. I am also more amazed at the wonderful description of myself given out by Mrs. Hains's attorneys. After living for the most part of the past fifteen years right in touch with New York, I find that I am described as a monster and, among other things, all instigated by this attorney, who is the real murderer of Annis, and who told me a short time back that he would wade through blood to gain his ends.

His desperate attempts to try and fasten every crime known to criminal history upon me at first amused me. Then when a Grand Jury whose foreman was a life-long friend of the Annis family came into the case and cleared me the affair became serious, indeed, as it showed plainly what might be accomplished under the disguise of law and justice.

I find myself accused of the crime of murder. Also I find that I am expected to rant and roar about like a lion in a cage to fulfil my part of this drama.

My friends are astonished at the turn of affairs, and are lost in wonder at the depths of crime that may be committed by a desperate attorney under the name of law. I am pointed as a black sheep of the family, and accused of the most impossible things.

Family Proud of Me.

In the first place, my family are just a bit proud of me. I have never done a single act in my entire life they do not approve of. I never ran away to sea in the romantic manner it seems necessary for a sailor and inspector to do in order to be like the lads in the story books.

No one has ever placed me in my first ship and I followed my calling without any help from my family, as has those which usually fall to a sailor's lot. My father and I have always been the best of friends and my dear old mother has been devoted to me, never now taking care of my little orphaned daughters. I have never been a "beach comber" and do not know exactly what a "beach comber" is and for the past fifteen years my life has been so busy that I have had no time to find out.

During these years I have contributed more to marine and nautical literature than any other living man in the United States, and my life has been that of a recognized authority, which I have been adopted in the public schools of many States, and most of them also, and the States navy as standard works, as my hundreds of articles on navigation, seamanship, etc., etc., together with many stories illustrative of the life at sea, are too well-known to educated people to call for remarks. These articles and contributed to nearly every first-class magazine

COUNTESS HERE ON THE IVERNIA

Closely veiled and very reticent, a handsome blonde woman who admitted at the ship's office that she is a British countess, arrived on the Cunard liner Ivernia to-day. She said that she had come to America in search of health.

A maid accompanies her. To the ship's officers she volunteered the information that she lives in 11 West Eaton Place, London. More than that she declined to say about herself.

Miss Laura C. Hills, America's foremost painter of miniatures, and her sister, Miss Lizzie Hills, were also on the Ivernia.

There were seventy-eight first and 300 second cabin passengers and 457 in the steerage on the Ivernia.

SEES HOSPITAL WORK ABROAD

Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Guild arrived home to-day on the Cunard liner Ivernia. Mr. Guild is a cousin of Governor Guild, Mrs. Guild is one of the best known workers in Boston hospitals and charities. Her trip abroad was devoted largely to visiting the great hospitals with a view to picking up information to be used here.

She visited the great Berchow Hospital in Berlin which occupies sixty-five buildings and the immense London Hospital in Whitechapel.

Auerbach bares Congressman Keliher's record at a rally in Winthrop town hall to-night at 8:30. Go and hear him.

MAYOR TO PUT DEPARTMENT HEADS ON HACKS

"How Many Hours Did You Work Last Week?" They Will Be Asked Monday.

Mayor Hibbard is to-day preparing a circular letter to be sent to the various department heads of the city government, in which they are asked to state definitely how many hours they worked this week. The letter will reach them Monday, so that they will tell how many hours they gave to city work during La Grippe week.

The Mayor is doing this in pursuance of his often stated belief that many of the paid boards of the city could be lessened in numbers without impairing the working efficiency of the board. He has said, for instance, that the election commissioners, now composed of four members, could accomplish as much with three men. Also he is known to favor a three-member transit commission.

It was stated from the Mayor's office today that this action by His Honor was distinct from any conclusion which he may have arrived at from his visit to the Health Board yesterday, when he found only the telephone operator in charge.

Commissioner John Ritchie of the Health Board said:

"The Mayor and everyone connected with this board knows that it is a twenty-four-hour board. We frequently have night sessions, and we are kept working far into the night. It is true, no doubt, that when the Mayor called yesterday he found no member of the board present, but there is nothing in that, as the members have irregular hours."

STOP USING SOAP

Causes Dandruff and Falling Hair and Ruins the Scalp.

The startling statement was recently made by one of the best known hair specialists in the country that soap as used in shampooing the hair and scalp is responsible for more cases of dandruff and scalp troubles than any other known cause. The reason is quite apparent when one realizes the excess alkali that very many soaps contain and which is really the principal cause of scalp scalp and dandruff.

The discovery of Birt's head wash was brought about in an effort to obviate and do away with the use of common soap as a shampoo in cleansing the hair and scalp, on account of common soap injuring the scalp and causing dandruff and falling hair. The marvelous success of Birt's head wash in not only preventing these troubles, but curing them as well, has caused a demand for it all over the country that has never before been known for any similar remedy for the hair and scalp. One or two applications will greatly benefit the worst cases, and used occasionally, it will keep the hair and scalp absolutely free from dandruff, as well as promote a luxuriant growth of hair. A full supply may be had in Boston at Houghton & Dutton Co.'s, R. H. White Co.'s, the Riker-Jaynes Stores and other leading drug stores for 50c.

Also a full supply of Birt's head wash, sufficient for the most obstinate case of dandruff and falling hair, will be sent to any address, all charges prepaid, by Birt's Laboratories, 212 Greenwich st. New York, on receipt of 50c in stamps or silver.

REFUSED TO BATHE, BEATEN, ASKS DIVORCE

Wife on Stand Says Husband Poured Hot Water on Her and Kicked Her.

Because she refused to take a bath when ordered, her husband, Peter Berry, struck her in the face and gave her a black eye which kept her confined to the house for many days, according to the testimony of Mrs. Becky Rockstein in the Suffolk Divorce Court to-day.

The Rocksteins case is the most sensational of the present session. Yesterday it ended in a scarcelet when the wife rushed at her husband in the courtroom after adjournment and declared that she would tear his eyes out because he had called her a name. During the melee which was continued in the corridor the couple's four-year-old child, for whose custody both are fighting, was knocked down and hurt.

Mrs. Rocksteln took the stand in her own defense today and denied all her husband's charges, with reference to Barney Wasserman. Mr. Wasserman is named in the case. Mrs. Rocksteln is a very pretty little Russian woman. She charged her husband with cruel and abusive treatment in her cross-filed.

Scalded with Hot Water.

While on the witness stand she said: "When we were living at No. 46 Leverett street, West End, while I was in delicate health, my husband took a bottle of hot water from the stove and poured it over my shoulder and arm because I asked him to pay the gas bill.

"On one occasion, when I asked my husband to take me to the weddine reception of one of our friends, he refused. I pleaded, he got angry and gave me another black eye.

"On another occasion when I was in delicate health he kicked me and pushed me up against the edge of a table, fainted and was confined to my bed for two weeks.

Refused Her Physician.

"When we lived at No. 15 Minot street my husband refused to provide a physician for me, although I had been seriously ill in bed for two days. My brother happened to visit the house and ordered a doctor and paid for his services.

"One time because I refused to take a bath when ordered to do so my husband hit me with his fist and gave me a black eye.

"He never gave me more than twenty-five cents a week to take care of myself and baby.

"One time I had to pawn my watch and chain to get money with which to pay the grocery and meat bills."

RAIN FAILS TO MAR RALLY AT GLOUCESTER

Osgood, McCartney and Adams Get Enthusiastic Welcome in Mansfield Hall.

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 28.—William N. Osgood, Independence League candidate for Governor; Robert J. McCartney, League candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and William O. Adams, candidate on the League ticket for the State Senate from the Third Essex District, were the speakers last night at a rally held in Mansfield Hall under the auspices of the Lenox League.

In spite of the rain, there was a fair-sized audience, composed mostly of wage-earners. Messrs. Osgood and McCartney discussed State issues, the latter referring to the attitude of Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper, the Republican candidate for Governor, toward labor. He related his experience with Mr. Draper when the moulders at the Draper plant in Hopedale were barred from joining the union. Mr. McCartney made an appeal to all laboring men to vote the Independence League ticket and give their all to advance its principles.

Mr. Adams denounced the methods of the old party machines in Essex County in buying the senatorial nominations. He declared that the candidates for the Senate must appeal directly to the wage-earners. "The League is the party of the working man. It stands for equal rights, fair play and government by the plain people," he said.

RECIPE FOR KIDNEY TROUBLE AND RHEUMATISM IS SIMPLE

The following prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles has no doubt been filled millions of times, viz.: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumblerful of water after each dose. It is stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflictions, relieving the aches and pains and swellings speedily.

A well-known authority states that this mixture acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, cleanses these spongelike organs and gives them power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, which is the cause of rheumatism.

If your back or sides ache and you suspect kidney trouble it would be wise to try this for a few days.

W. R. HEARST PRAISED IN LONDON EDITORIAL

Special Cable to New York American.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Daily Mail, in a column editorial on the coming Presidential election in the United States, says to-day:

"In all sections the American people are convinced that whoever wins the trusts will pull the strings. Taft or Bryan may reign, but the trust will govern. Dumb despair seems to have settled upon the U. S. A. over deadly charges William R. Hearst has made against the politicians of both old parties. In his own words—and close students of American history know he scarcely exaggerates by a syllable—for the last twenty years the Standard Oil has been instrumental in deciding every national election."

Dealing detailedly with the domination of the trusts from Cleveland to Roosevelt, the Mail continues: "Every American knows the Standard Oil and kindred organizations can dictate laws, make or unmake Presidents, defy justice or ruin rivals in business. Remedy against their misdeeds under present conditions the citizen has none. Not a single trust magnate of any importance has ever been published or imprisoned, but when matters come to a head and the exasperation of public feeling demands public action, a fine is imposed, which, however, is never exacted. Such is the manner of the game of finance in business played in the trust-ridden community. It is the foes of trusts who have suffered hitherto, not the trusts.

"Hearst has already been threatened with their vengeance. Those he has assailed have begun suits for criminal libel. Possibly they may be able to strike him hard. They have hundreds of millions at their back, while he has only millions, yet we think he has counted the cost and is prepared to face the music. Where a whole State is bought and sold it is well that some one should have the courage to protest and a sense of civic duty to back the protest with action."

The editorial, in its familiarity with American conditions and strength of utterance, is one of the most remarkable appearing in the English press.

Osgood Explains Why Labor Men Should Support League

William N. Osgood, Independence League candidate for Governor, briefly discussed the subject of injunctions and the workman's compensation act in his speech at Gloucester last night.

He then took up the matter of direct legislation, and stated that the strong planks of the Independence party platform upon that reform distinguished it from both the Republican and Democratic parties, which were as silent as a churchyard upon the subject in their respective platforms.

"Side alone stamped the new party as emphatically the party of real and true popular government. Direct legislation is one of the most vital and important reforms in American politics. The leader of the national Democratic party and the leader of the party in Massachusetts have both so declared in many public utterances during the past few years.

"What excuse do they offer for omitting it from their national party platform recently adopted at Denver? It did not receive even mention from the Republican party in their platform, but the Democratic platform omitted from the Democratic platform proves conclusively that the latter party can no longer honestly claim to be the party of the people.

"What are the objections to direct legislation? They are few, indeed, because it is in strict harmony with our representative form of government. It does not demand any change in our Constitution in Massachusetts. The article and I may say the letter, of that instrument permits it.

How Constitution Reads.

"We find in the Constitution, for example, the following language: 'All power residing originally in the people and being derived from them, the several magistrates and officers of government, vested with authority, whether legislative, executive or judicial, are their substitutes and agents and are at all times accountable to them.'

"In another place we find also that the people have a right in an orderly and peaceable manner to instruct their representatives upon the common good; give instructions to their representatives and to request of the legislative body the redress of wrongs, petitions or remonstrances redress of the wrongs done them, and of the grievances they suffer.

"Yet there is no express provision in the constitution compelling their 'agents' to listen and obey. Hence the need of direct demand action upon their petitions. This would seem to have been the unquestionable oversight on the part of the framers. Perhaps they thought the representatives would heed public opinion without being forced to heed it. Such times, however, were not our times.

"The only remedy we now have against representatives who become 'oppressors' is to 'return them to private life.' But the wrongs which they have done remain. 'Direct legislation by the people will prevent those wrongs, and enable them to demand legislation that is in the interest of the public welfare.

"Some men say that direct legislation is impracticable. That might be true if employed in regard to the subjects of legislation. Certain legislation, such as appropriations for the ordinary needs of government, for the preservation of the peace and health of the community, for public emergencies and the like, should be left without interference by the people to the judgment of legislative representatives.

Boss Rule Doomed.

"It should be possible to evoke popular action by demanding direct legislation concerning public matters, although important, which are not urgent, that is, such matters as the erection of public buildings, extensive street improvements, granting of valuable public franchises, etc.

"These matters, it is true, are important, but there is no urgent reason why they should be voted for within a month or two months. In regard to these things the people should have an opportunity to express an opinion which would make their representatives.

"Is it possible to have a sane and practicable plan of direct legislation.

"The cities of our public have all committed a great blunder in adopting city charters and not retaining for themselves power upon the acts of their mayors and municipal councils.

"Before many years they will be forced to restore the initiative if they intend to control the collection and expenditure of public moneys. This was a principle held by both the Democratic and Republican parties in their platforms of fifty and sixty years ago.

"How has the matter been allowed to slumber? Ask the bosses and the lobby."

The speaker then recalled a well-considered plan of direct legislation would be the appointment by the Governor and Council, the disappearance of corruption and the reallocation of actual popular government."

Robert J. McCartney, who was the Independence England candidate for Lieutenant-Governor when Eben S. Draper broke his pledge to the molders and ordered the company to withdraw from the union, says:

Every workingman who wishes to make his protest against Eben S. Draper most effective will support Hon. William N. Osgood, the candidate of the Independence League, for Governor.

MEXICAN DAY AT FOOD FAIR

As an evidence of appreciation of the policy of President Porfirio Diaz of Mexico in sending the Mexican band to the annual food fair in Mechanics building, to-day has been set apart as Mexican day. The Governor, Mayor, Director of the port, Senor Adolfo R. Nuncio, the Mexican special commissioner at the fair, Hon. Arthur P. Gasking, Mexican Consul at Boston, and others will attend. The Mexican band will play a special program of Mexican and Spanish music, many of the compositions being the work of Senor Velino M. Presa, the leader of the band, and there will be a distribution of handsome Mexican souvenirs to every lady who attends.

This evening one of the prettiest girls in Greater Boston will be married on the stage of the Grand Hall. Friday will be Spanish day at the fair, and Saturday night the great annual New England Food Fair and House Furnishing Exposition will be brought to a close.

ATTENTION, SCHOOL CHILDREN!

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is going to give away $500 in cash to the school boys and girls of Boston in a handwriting contest. Do YOU want some of it? Read the particulars. Then send a sample of your handwriting, as per directions. You may win. Try it.

THREE HURT IN EXPLOSION.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Three railroad men were injured, two probably fatally, when the crown sheet on the boiler of an engine drawing a milk train on the New York Central Railroad blew out. The fireman was blown through a cab window. Engineer Banns stuck to his post.

5,000 CHILDREN AT MASS IN CATHEDRAL

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL PUPILS, ATTEND IMPRESSIVE CHURCH SERVICE.

Five thousand Catholic children of Greater Boston, representing every parochial school in the Boston diocese, attended the solemn high mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross at 10:30 a. m. today, marking the beginning of the second day's celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the Boston archdiocese.

The children filled the great Cathedral. They had met in their respective schools early to-day, and then under the leadership of their teachers of the different sisterhoods reached the Cathedral by trains and electric cars. Children from the South End, Back Bay and nearby Roxbury parochial schools marched to the church.

Children's Day.

Today is called "children's day" in the programme of the centenary celebration, and the solemn high mass which they attended had been called to implore God's blessing on the children of the diocese.

Vicar-General, the Very Rev. George J. Patterson, officiated at the mass. The Rev. George A. Lyons, supervisor of parochial schools in the Boston diocese, preached the sermon. It was a deep, stirring appeal to the hearts of the children to lead upright, useful lives.

Archbishop O'Connell attended the children's mass. The Rev. George J. Lyons and the Rev. John J. Graham, acted as chaplains to the archbishop.

Rev. John J. Crane was deacon of the mass, Rev. Thomas B. McCoy was subdeacon and Rev. M. J. Splaine, chancellor of the archdiocese, was master of ceremonies.

While the mass was in progress, a crowd of 600 men, women and children waited outside the Cathedral. No grown persons were admitted to the mass. The children who could not gain admittance on account of lack of room had come as individuals rather than members of school delegations, and all available space had been allotted to school delegations.

One of the largest delegations was from St. Thomas's Church, Jamaica Plain. Monsignor Mayenis, rector of the church, was in charge of the children.

The threatening day, promising rain at every moment, had no terrors for the little children who had come from all over Greater Boston to do their share in making the great celebration a success.

Every child who had been selected from the 50,000 children attending the parochial schools in Greater Boston to attend the mass was on hand ready for the journey to the Cathedral.

Inspiring Spectacle.

The service was unique in many respects. The entire body of the nave of the cathedral, the organ loft, the space in front of the sanctuary and the vacant spaces in the transepts were crowded with children. Never before has the Cathedral been given over entirely to the children of the diocese, and the sight was one to leave a lasting impression on the mind of everyone who saw it.

No more stirring incident ever took place in the Cathedral than that at the end of the mass when the 5,000 children sang with all the strength of their young voices the inspiring words of the ancient Latin hymn, "Long Live the Pope," the first stanza of which is:

Long live the Pope! His praises sound
Again and yet again;
His rule is over space and time;
His throne the hearts of men.
All hail! The Shepherd-King of Rome,
The theme of loving song;
Let all the earth his glory sing,
And heav'n the strain prolong.

Archbishop O'Connell, who is passionately fond of music, joined in the chorus, and taking his purple beretta from his head beat time. Even the policemen that were on duty in the cathedral became infected with the spirit of the occasion and, helmets in hand, pedned in praise and supplication for the present pontiff.

At the conclusion of this hymn, and while the clergy were getting in the vestry, the congregation sang the "Te Deum" in English.

Return in Special Cars.

As it was raining the children were quickly hurried around to Harrison avenue, where the special cars that had brought those from a distance were waiting.

The ushers at to-day's children's mass were members of the senior and junior classes at Boston College.

Not a single mishap occurred during the bringing into Boston and the returning to their homes of the several thousand children. It was a splendid tribute to the teachers' drilling and control over their small charges.

There was no set program or service of any kind this afternoon as part of the centenary celebration, but tonight at 8 o'clock in the Cathedral there will be a public recital of church music by the regular cathedral choir and the quartette of graduation. The recital is primarily attended for choir directors and singers in the Boston diocese to give them a practical rendition of approved church music in which Archbishop O'Connell takes deep interest.

RECITAL TO-NIGHT OF APPROVED MUSIC FOR THE DIOCESE

Tonight's public recital of approved church music in the Cathedral is the most important as well as interesting event. Under the leadership of Archbishop O'Connell, himself a fine musician, the church music has been gone over and revised. A list of music for Catholic churches in the Boston diocese has been prepared and approved by the archbishop, and tonight's recital is the first rendition and is designed to be a practical rendition for the benefit of lay Catholics as well as choir directors and singers of the diocese of the new approved music. The program tonight is as follows:

HISGEN LAYS OPEN A POLITICAL MELLEN

INDEPENDENCE PARTY LEADER SHOWS WHY NEW HAVEN ROAD WENT TO DEMOCRACY.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 29.—Before an enthusiastic audience at Stehlert Hall, in this city, Thomas L. Hisgen, Independence party candidate for President, last night severely flayed the Standard Oil Trust and the New Haven Railway Company for their pernicious activity in politics.

"One of the surprising things in this campaign," said Mr. Hisgen, "is that the great trusts of the country seem to have turned their attention to the Democratic party as a means through which they may accomplish their end. Since the beginning of this national campaign it has been shown to the world through William Randolph Hearst that the standard Oil Company has practically dominated our politics for nearly forty years.

"Mr. Hearst has shown that the Standard Oil has carried on its payroll not only Representatives and Senators, but has named men to occupy places on the Supreme Court bench. Some of those men still occupy those positions to which they were assigned by this giant corporation.

Big Railroad Monopoly.

"But the Standard Oil Company is not the only big corporation which has turned its eyes toward the Democratic party as a promising field for exploitation. I know something of the New Haven railroad and of its grasping tendencies. It is a creature of the Standard Oil Company. William Rockefeller is a director.

"When I was candidate for Governor in Massachusetts last year, one of the chief planks in the platform upon which I ran was anti-merger.

"As I were opposed to the New Haven Railroad Company committing the dastardly act of the railroad situation in New England by gobbling up the Boston & Maine. The Independence League of Massachusetts was instrumental in balling Senator Hoar's career of conquest in this direction.

"And this corporation, disgruntled with the Republican rule of Governor Woodruff in this State, is now backing a Democrat for the chief office of the Commonwealth.

"In order that there may be no possible mistake in their aim, they have selected A. Heaton Robertson, a member of the Board of Directors of the New Haven Railroad, as their candidate. Mr. Robertson is also a director of the Southern New England Telephone Company.

"When it comes to a matter of business, neither the Standard Oil Trust nor the New Haven Railroad cares anything for party name. They go into whichever party suits their purposes for them. In times past they have been able to do business successfully with the Republican party. Then Mr. Roosevelt came along, joined them considerably, and the Democratic party proceeded to deal with the Democratic party.

The Republican administration of this State dared to defy even the interests of the people to some extent. It is said, to the neglect of the railroad company, and hence Mr. Mellen proceeds to do business with the Connecticut Democracy.

A Party They Can't Control.

"There is one party with whom none of the trusts can bargain—that is the Independence party, which has been in existence only a few months, but which during that time has unmasked more political trickstors than any other political party has done in the same length of time in the history of the American government."

Former Congressman M. W. Howard of Alabama, in the course of an eloquent address said:

"In the United States Senate last Winter, Senator La Follette said, and proved, too, that one hundred men or fewer controlled the wealth of this country, and he might have added that the Standard Oil Company owned that one hundred men.

"For twenty years after the terrible internecine conflict which threatened to disrupt our great nation, the two old parties fought over the ashes of the Confederate dead and Dr. Republican got tired of this after a while, and then fought it out over the tariff.

"If you'll only give us a chance to get in, we'll show you how to fix the tariff," said Dr. Democrat. Well, they got in, and they settled the tariff, and we haven't heard anything about that.

"Since then they've been fighting about nothing."

PHELAN TO EXPOSE TAMMANY DEALS

THERE is an active minority element in politics in Ward 17 that sets like a fox and cunningly divides the respectable, God-fearing voters into three separate camps, only by so doing allows that notorious grafting organization on Hampden street, known as Tammany Hall, to come to conquer everything and then divide the loss taking ninety-nine per cent of the spoils and the minority party in the ward receiving the remainder. This will expose this element at the rally to be held in Vine Street Church Friday night.—Thomas J. Phelan, candidate for the House of Representatives on the Independence League ticket in Ward 17.

Never a "Beach Comber."

Just how a "mischember" should find time to attend to his work on the "Beach" while writing to this extent I leave the intelligent readers to guess. I think they will agree with me that if this imaginative attorney would turn his talents into honorable and decent channels he might do better.

In regard to his client, Mrs. Hains, I have nothing to say for her defense and I never would write her, never saw her alone twice in the past, for I never cared for the business to drag me into a quarrel must be set down with her attorney's unjustifiable but all her letters are forgeries and distorted.

No, there can be no defense in regard to a woman who is trying to hang her husband, the father of her children, a poor, broken-hearted husband who went mad.

I never charged her with any crime. I never made any statement against her in any letter. My attorneys have the only letter I wrote to Pete while he was away and there is no charge of any kind in it. Before I even knew Mrs. Hains existed I came to my home and tore into my house like a cyclone the night and afterward, don't get lachrymose easily, but I did cry at the horror of Mrs. Hains' condition. For bonus I could get nothing consolation. For bonus I could get nothing consolation. For bonus I could get nothing consolation

PAINTING OF ARCHBISHOP

A life-size painting of His Grace Most Rev. Archbishop William H. O'Connell, D. D., which is to be one of the most prominent features of the coming Catholic Charities Bazaar to be held in Mechanics Building on November 14, is now on exhibition in the window of the Henry Siegel Company. The painting is loaned by the artist, Frank B. Conlin of No. 53 Temple place, and is made from the favorite portrait of the archbishop, showing His Grace in full pontifical robes. The painting is to be the feature of the House of Good Shepherd table at the charities bazaar. The painting is inclosed in a magnificent gold frame, with cotton plerre ornaments. The entire picture stands nearly seven feet in height. The Siegel management is greatly pleased with the opportunity of exhibiting the painting.

HOW KELIHER HELPS THE CORPORATIONS

TOLD BY JUNIUS T. AUERBACH, Independence Nominee for Congress in the Ninth District.

Junius T. Auerbach, Independence candidate for Congress in the Ninth District, spoke in the Ward 3 ward room in Charlestown last night to a great crowd. It was the largest ward rally conducted by any party in Boston during this campaign and for an hour Mr. Auerbach held the interest and attention of his auditors that not a person left the hall. Proffers of substantial support at the polls came to him from all sides.

Mr. Auerbach devoted himself wholly to the record of Congressman John A. Keliher in House, Senate and Congress. He said in part:

This remarkable demonstration shows that the people are awake, that something has happened. I'm a candidate for Congress from a solemn sense of duty. And I'm going to win. I'm going to win because I'm right and because my opponent has sold you out. I'm going to win because my opponent has sold you out. I'm going to win because the voter in the old Ninth District is no longer somnolent, but has learned just the kind of man he has had representing him in the Congress of the United States.

"I'm going to tell you to-night something about the record of that man. It's a big black and white, from the books at the State House and from the files of Congress. And it's a record of the betrayal of a people's trust.

"John A. Keliher was a member of the House of Representatives in 1907 and 1908. Upon every occasion where the interests of the predatory corporations ran counter to the good of the people, John A. Keliher registered himself for all time in favor of the corporation. He voted for the bill incorporating the Manchester & Lynn Line Company, the Whitney steal; the scheme to secure from the people a right in perpetuity, to provide a fee for Boston and the suburbs, to issue inflations of stock, and under the plea of no fee given by the people to have in the end the people pay all the bills, pay all the profits, have high-priced gas, while a few stock manipulators and franchise getters might add millions to their already swollen illgotten fortunes. It was a virgin steal.

Voted Against Two-Cent-a-Mile Bill.

"He dodged the vote on the question of ordering a committee to investigate the telephone charges throughout the Common wealth. The purses of the people burdened by extortionate telephone charges did not appeal to John A. Keliher. Telephone lobby captured him, but the latter became law and reductions followed. He voted against a bill to establish a uniform rate of two cents per mile through out the Commonwealth. It was the railroad corporation fastening its grip then upon Massachusetts, as it has upon Connecticut and New Hampshire. That appealed to John A. Keliher, instead of the interests of the citizens. He just was the demand that the New Haven road voluntarily submit to the will of the people and bill requiring street railways to place vestibules upon the street cars, including the subsidiary corporations of the New Haven road, and the disregarding the humane and just request of the thousands of street railway employes, whose labors, in every stress of weather, were upon the street cars of our cities.

"In the State Senate during 1899-1900 he voted against the bill known as the Corrupt Practices Act, the one having to do with bribing about honesty in the use of money in elections, and to preserve decency and fairness in the counting of our ballots. It is law now. He voted against the bill allowing manual training in the public schools, and the vote of John A. Keliher killed this bill. He voted "No" on the question of appropriating for the city of Boston.

Managed to "Get By."

Such, in brief, was the record of John A. Keliher as a member of the House of Representatives and as a Senator of Massachusetts. He managed, however, to get by. He was a good fellow, the smiling John, the man with the glad hand, the ready speaker at social functions in his district, and he was tagged with a party label and his record was hidden and his supporters were urged to support "regular," so he managed to win again, and he went to Congress, assisted in his campaign by all those interests he had favored and supported at the State House, and at the people's expense.

The creature of the trusts and corporations in Massachusetts, he was their servant in Washington. Any resolution or measure in the Congress of the United States, seeking the interests of soulless business, in favor of the clustered plutes that prey upon the people, found in John A. Keliher a ready and obedient servant. He presented in the Congress of the United States a resolution adopted by the Boston Metal Trades Association, opposing the bill making eight hours a working day on Government work, whether under contract performance or work under the direct control of the Government, the interests of the toilers of the country, whose efforts have for years been directed and whose efforts will yet succeed in having an eight-hour work day throughout the country, were lost sight of entirely by John A. Keliher.

He voted against the Pure Food law in all stages of its passage, and he dodged the vote on the Naval Appropriation bill, for additions to the Government foundry in Washington Navy Yard.

He dodged the vote on the exclusion of Japanese workmen from the Continental possessions of the United States, perfectly willing that 90 cents a day labor from the Orient, instead of decently paid American labor, should be employed in the building of the Panama Canal. He dodged the vote on the question of passing the bills regulating the hours of trainmen on interstate trains to 16 hours in 24.

MORSE LOANS REPUDIATED BY CURTIS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the Bank of North America, flatly repudiated loans to Charles W. Morse, with whom he is on trial for over-certification and other violations of the banking laws, on the witness stand in his own defence this afternoon.

The break between the two was made apparent when Lawyer Littleton Fitzgerald, Morse's chief counsel, made vehement protests against Curtis being allowed to give testimony that would be prejudicial to the case of Morse. Nevertheless, such testimony was allowed and Mr. Curtis swore that he had knowledge of the Morse loans.

It was brought out, also, that District Attorney Stimson, who is vigorously prosecuting the two men, was for many years counsel for the bank and that he advised against some of the loans that were made.

LOST CHILD FOUND DEAD.

EXETER, N. H., Oct. 29.—The two-year-old son of Peter Valinski of this place strayed away, and a searching party spent most of the night in an attempt to find the child. The body of the little one was finally found by Officer Robinson in a brush pile on a farm. Physicians attribute the death to exposure rather than drowning.

LURED TO HUB, THEN ROBBED, GIRL CHARGES

Accused of stealing a diamond engagement ring, valued at $135, from his fiancee, Miss Sarah Cushing, a handsome Lawrence girl, Samuel Swartz of No. 91 Leverett street, Boston, was arraigned in Police Court to-day and held in $1,000 bonds for the grand jury. Swartz waived examination.

Counsel for Miss Cushing declare that Swartz, tired of the fair sex for a time, had summoned her to Boston, because, as he wrote her, he was lonesome and wanted her near him.

A letter beginning, "My Dear Bride," and requesting Miss Cushing to join him in Boston and which was signed "Your Loving Bridegroom," was the mail which Swartz used to lure his fiancee within his reach so he could get back the ring, it is declared by Miss Cushing's lawyer.

This letter, it is said, will play an important part in the trial if Swartz is brought before the Superior Court.

Miss Cushing declares she came to Boston last Sunday in response to Swartz's letter, and that he then told her their engagement was over. She says he demanded that she return the diamond engagement ring he gave her when she accepted him, and when she refused to give it back before it from her finger. She then caused his arrest.

Miss Cushing appeared in court to-day when her fortune-hunting fiancee was arraigned. She was richly dressed and made a striking appearance.

4 OUT OF 6 GUILTY IN DEATH CASE

Four of the six Sicilians who have been on trial for the past two weeks charged with murdering Peter Needham, a Union Freight railway switchman on Atlantic avenue, were found guilty of manslaughter by the jury which returned its verdict to-day before Judge Schofield in the Superior Criminal Court.

The other two men on trial were found not guilty and will be discharged.

All of the men had been indicted and tried on charges of second degree murder, but the jury's verdict placed the charge one degree lower, that of manslaughter.

The jury was out from 12:40 yesterday afternoon till 6:10 o'clock this morning, just five and one-half hours. They returned a verdict and went home. In court to-day the verdict was agreed upon and:

The men found guilty of manslaughter are Guiseppe Cardinelli, Pietro La Pace, Antonio Orlando and Rosario Taormina. The men found not guilty are Guiseppe Zenzari and Cesare Ferrantello.

After the reading of the verdict freeing Zenzari and Cermanico, these two men were immediately rearrested on indictments charging them with attempting to murder the two flagmen who were wounded in the fight in which Needham was stabbed to death.

Judge Schofield also called Juror John T. O'Brien of No. 24 Chambers street before him and sent him to jail for thirty days for contempt of court. O'Brien was interrogated once during the trial, and the trial had to be postponed for one day on his account.

SHOW MERIT OF AUTO IN NOVEL RACE

A unique automobile race of interest to every prospective purchaser of an automobile took place yesterday. The route selected was through the congested retail and wholesale districts of Boston, and the competitors were a Studebaker electric runabout, driven by Miss Laura Duval Ing car, driven by John Oswald. To the surprise of thousands of people who watched the progress of the race, the electric vehicle defeated the very speedy touring car by thirteen minutes over a course of about ten miles.

As the touring car has a speed capacity of nearly a mile a minute and the electric vehicle is limited to less than twenty miles an hour, the race was a test of the adaptibility of the electric vehicle to down town work in the crowded streets of the shopping districts, the observers on each car noted that the electric would sometimes gain almost a minute in a single block.

Starting from the headquarters of the Studebaker Automobile Company, No. 1-020 Boylston street, the route of the electric car was to the Public Library, where the first of twenty-five stops was made.

The route of the car was through the business sections of Boylston, Winter, Summer, Washington streets, Atlantic, Huntington and Massachusetts avenues, back to the start.

In order that there might be no question of collusion between drivers, the gasoline car made the route in the opposite direction. The course was chosen as the test is a duplicate of the recent winner of the New State Automobile Association Reliability run in the Boston and return, and in a run along unobstructed roads would go two miles while an electric would go one.

Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure is the only positive remedy for Diabetes.

Mr. H. S. Brewer, a prominent real estate dealer, of Rochester, N. Y., has been cured of a bad case of diabetes by Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure, which is their special preparation for this disease.

"After suffering greatly from Diabetes Mellitus for some time and not experiencing any relief from different courses of treatment prescribed, I commenced the use of Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure and soon noticed a great improvement in my condition.

The excessive thirst and abnormal appetite have disappeared. The flow of urine has been reduced to the normal amount. The amount of sugar is greatly lessened, my weight has increased and I am surely recovering my usual health.

WORTHY NOMINEES ON LEAGUE TICKET

CHARLES J. KIDNEY.

Charles J. Kidney, Independence League nominee in the Tenth Congressional District, is one of the best known men in Boston. He was educated in the Roxbury schools and is a graduate of Boston College, having been one of the charter students of that institution.

For many years he has conducted an extensive real estate business with offices on Dudley street. He has taken a big interest in the improvement of South Boston and Roxbury and has joined in many public movements for the betterment of the Dorchester District.

He has always been independent in politics. No ward or city machine and no politician, big or little, ever have controlled Mr. Kidney's vote or influence. When a candidate for public offices he has always fought the machines of the two old parties and has heretofore had little trouble in large votes.

Mr. Kidney is making a very active campaign, speaking almost nightly from the public platform and personally meeting the voters of the district. Many Democrats, who are disgusted with the party and greedy methods of the politician, have promised him their support and a large number of Republicans have personally assured him of their votes.

Mr. Kidney stands squarely on the National and State platform of the Independence League and is an earnest advocate of Thomas L. Hisgen for President and William N. Osgood for Governor. He also believes in local home rule and expects He believes in the referendum. He is forever against the principle represent the Tenth District for years to come than any of the other candidates.

EDWIN M. WHITE.

One of the best scholars in the city of Boston is Edwin M. White, Independence League candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District. He is a graduate of Harvard, and completed there both the classical and scientific courses. Later he took the full course at the Boston University Law School.

Mr. White has made a special business of conveyancing and is an expert on property values in Boston. The taxation question has been given special study by him, and he has written and spoken a great deal on the different phases of it.

He is a forceful advocate of public ownership of public utilities that are in their character public monopolies, is strongly in favor of the referendum and a splendid type of the progressive force in American politics.

GEORGE CONLEY.

George Conley of Lowell, candidate of the Independence League in the Fifth Congressional District, which comprises Lowell and Lawrence and a dozen towns in Essex County, is president of the Cotton Spinners' Union of Lowell, delegate to the American Federation of Labor for Massachusetts and delegate to the Textile Council of New England.

His opponent is Butler Ames of Lowell, whose nomination obtained the Democratic nomination for him in a snap convention, which were held on Labor Day by the Ballot Law Commissioner.

Mr. Conley knows how to work for the interests of the common people, because he is one of them and has been for many years studying the needs of the toilers and trying to improve their conditions.

WILLIAM C. JOHNSON.

The Fifth Suffolk Senatorial District, comprising Wards 19, 14 and 15, will be particularly carved out as a staunch Republican corporation territory. Last year it was represented in the Senate by no record but of the Public Service Corporations by the name of Charles D. B. Fiske. He is a candidate again this year and is opposed by no Democratic candidate, for has been said that the failure of the Democrats to make a nomination is in line with the alleged expressed desires of the Boston Elevated and New England Telephone Companies that Mr. Fiske's path toward re-election be made as easy as possible.

The Independence League party has a candidate in its district, his name is William C. Johnson. He is employed in the City Engineering Service and lives in Ward 19. Fiske has been officially condemned by organized labor because he voted against all labor bills. Johnson is friendly with the things organized labor wants. Fiske has been denounced for certain legislative acts from the pulpit in Brighton.

Johnson is the kind of a man that would try to represent the district honestly and faithfully.

BODY WEDGED IN TROLLEY WHEELS

NEWBURYPORT, Oct. 29.—Traffic on the electric street railway line between here and Haverhill was held up for an hour and a half at West Newbury by the body of Felix Masseroux becoming firmly wedged under the wheels of a car. It was necessary to send to Haverhill for wrecking apparatus to free the car from the rails before the body could be extricated.

From top to bottom: Charles J. Kidney, Edwin M. White, George Conley and William C. Johnson.

BRYAN WOULD BRING CALAMITY

—Andrew Carnegie.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Andrew Carnegie arrived in New York on the steamship Adriatic today. He said that the election of Mr. Bryan would prove a calamity to the country. He felt satisfied that Governor Hughes, to whose campaign he contributed, would be elected.

"While I believe Mr. Taft will win the presidential race, I want also to say that if by any chance Mr. Bryan should win, a great tragedy would fall on the Supreme Court of the United States which would last for twenty years. Bryan would mark and color the Supreme Court with judges who would render the Senate helpless."

Double Legal Stamps will be given with every purchase mornings until 12 o'clock noon at Wolf's, "My Clothier," corner Hanover and Portland streets. Single stamps thereafter.

SUFFRAGETTES ARRAIGNED IN POLICE COURT

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Fourteen suffragettes arrested last night for persisting in disregarding a crowd in front of the Parliament buildings were arraigned in the Police Court today.

Twelve of them were fined $25 each, with the alternative of a month's imprisonment, in the third division, one was remanded and one was discharged.

He has always been independent in politics. No ward or city machine and no politician, big or little, ever have controlled Mr. Kidney's vote or influence. When a candidate for public offices he has always fought the machines of the two old parties and has heretofore had little trouble in large votes.

BODY WEDGED IN TROLLEY WHEELS

NEWBURYPORT, Oct. 29.—Traffic on the electric street railway line between here and Haverhill was held up for an hour and a half at West Newbury by the body of Felix Masseroux becoming firmly wedged under the wheels of a car. It was necessary to send to Haverhill for wrecking apparatus to free the car from the rails before the body could be extricated.

School Children Eager for $500 Prize Contest

Thousands of the Little Ones Will Strive for Prizes in Great Handwriting Competition

Thousands of school children in Boston—both boys and girls—are interested in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN Handwriting Contest.

Every one of them who is under six teen years of age is going to enter and try for a share of the $500 to be given in prizes.

The demonstrations in and about the Parliamentary buildings were the most remarkable of the series of suffragette activities which have occupied the London police for the past few months.

It was late in the afternoon when the members began arriving in the House of Commons were startlingly diversified by a suffragette who leaped from the gallery. She shrilly demanded that the women of England be allowed to vote. And she threw down a bundle of papers from the visitors' gallery, at the same time crying "I am a man, and I protest against the justice to women."

The ejection of the male disturber was followed by sounds of a desperate struggle in the gallery. Then it was discovered that two suffragettes had chained themselves to the gallery.

Eventually the attendants, none of them able to release the women from their self-fastened chains, were obliged to remove a portion of the grille and so free them from further annoyance.

Simultaneously with the scene inside the house a party of suffragettes barricaded a large crowd from the entrance to Parliament building. The police arrested fourteen of them.

When the House was adjourning the Speaker announced that the corridors, gallery and the ladies' gallery should be closed until further notice.

MILLIONAIRE WEDS HIS STENOGRAPHER

FITCHBURG, Oct. 29.—George A. Whitney, millionaire real estate owner of Springfield, married his stenographer, Miss Sadie M. Russell, in this city. The wedding was the culmination of a five-year romance.

The contest will end December 13. Prize winners will receive their money in time to buy Christmas presents. Every school child under sixteen is eligible. Why not try it?

Here is the way to enter:

Fill out the blank in next Sunday's paper and forward it to the HANDWRITING EDITOR, THE BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. To the bottom of the coupon attach the specimen of your handwriting. Ten minutes will do it—five minutes at the most.

Crisp $20 Bills.

The sample YOU send in may win one of the first prizes. That would mean a crisp $20 bill with which to buy Christmas presents.

Or it might mean a start for a good bank account. It might also mean a check or other things.

This is a contest in which parents as well as children are interested. Want your father or mother in Boston is not interested in the natural development of your child? If YOU are a parent, have your boy or girl entered in the CONTEST.

You'd like to read in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN some day that YOUR little girl or little boy was selected as one of the first three to enter. And it would delight your boy or girl, too.

Talk to the children about it TO-DAY! Tell them to enter. Don't delay about it. Here are the particulars:

$500 in Prizes.

TO THE BOYS AND GIRLS OF EIGHT YEARS OR UNDER—$100 in prizes, as follows: First prize, $20; second prize, $10; third prize, $5; six prizes of $2 each; six prizes of $2 each, and thirty-five prizes of $1 each.

Men's New Clothes!!!

Let No Woman Countenance Their Glad Rag Movement!

By DOROTHY DIX

S-S-S-SH! Have you heard out? Men's new clothes. They are so loud that they are distinctly audible a block away, so you can't have missed 'em.

The worm has turned at last, and men are making a desperate fight for beauty in their attire. The poor, old, down-trodden grub is trying his best to burst his chrysalis and become a butterfly.

Look at men's new hats! No longer the humble, pot-like derby, or the self-effacing and apologetic felt pancake, but a cocky affair in bright green, with a feather in the side. Yes, actually a feather!

DOROTHY DIX.

Observe the new waistcoats! They have got Solomon in all his glory nailed to his own clothes press.

Regard the new necktie! A rainbow looks like a faded, washed out string beside them.

See the new socks? You can't miss seeing them, for they are of a gorgeousness that constrains the happy wearer to hitch up his trousers to his kneecaps every time he sits down to exhibit of a wounde

Regard the suit of clothes proper! No longer is it of the serviceable black or the useful, inconspicuous brown, or the dull navy blue of yore; but it has also broken out into a riot of color, and even dares to usurp the shades that have been woman's monopoly.

Man to Become a Thing of Beauty?

And fashionable tailors say that worse is still to come, and boldly prophesy that the day of man's sartorial emancipation is at hand, and that in the near future the wardrobe of Johnny Jones will be as radiant and variegated as that of his sister Sue.

Man will then cease to be merely a background for woman's beauty and adornment. In his peacock plumage he will be as conspicuous as the landscape himself.

Let women rouse at these fell tidings and gird their fighting armor on; for their dearest privilege is in danger, their most sacred rights are about to be trod upon. The shifons of life—is threatened. For women born a Pretty Clothes Fiend, and they let men break into it at their peril.

Those many excellent reasons why women should from its beginning refuse to countenance this Glad Rag Movement without number. In the first place, one Bird of Paradise is all that any family can afford to support, and it is self-evident that waistcoats bills increase dressmakers' and milliners' bills must decrease.

As long as men wear the homely, dark, utilitarian garb that they do now, there is small incentive for them to buy new ones, and this permits the man's earnings to be distributed into the purses and pocketbooks of purchasing frills and furbelows for some women.

Far otherwise would this be if the man was confronted with the necessity of investing in his earnings on loudness suits and had the direction cut in his pay envelope. Then, you may be sure, madame would have to divvy up on the clothes proposition with monsieur, and madame wouldn't get the heavy end of the purse because monsieur carries it.

He Wouldn't Be a Joy Forever

Also it will be a sad day for women when men's attention is distracted from business by fashion. When you are going to buy a coat and a pair of trousers exactly like those worn by every other man two minutes suffice for the selection thereof, but when men begin to wear gay colors they have got to begin to consider their complexions and which shades are becoming.

They must likewise select according to their figures, since everybody is aware that loud effects do not bring out the beauties of gentlemen built on the architectural plan of a swell front residence, nor is the symmetry of a living skeleton enhanced by the wearing of plaids.

This will take time, and when our leading dressmakers and tailors have taken to devising ravishing costumes for themselves that will paralyze their rivals on Chicago there will be a deal less money made, and consequently women will have far less of the needful wherewith to fashion their own.

Another objection to man forsaking the straight and narrow and economical path of dress he is now treading is that the modern house or apartment is not built for clothes for two.

As long as a man is satisfied, as he is at present, with one look in a closet and part of a chiffonier drawer for his little fixings, the domestic entente cordiale can be maintained; but if men require gorgeous wardrobes, it is evident that they will have somewhere to put them, and the result is bound to bring about family bickerings and quarrels, and still further add to the divorce evil.

For there are some things a patient woman will stand and endure, but she won't stand for one of the things she won't is to have new frocks nussed up.

Plain Clothes Keep Him Humble

The chief reason, however, why women should set down hard on this sprouting tendency of man's to beautify himself is gynecological, in that it is only in his clothes that keep him humble. Every time a man takes a look at his trousers, like two stovepipes, his coat, like a boa constrictor, like a section of white picket fence rising; his hat, like an inverted pail—positively tribunitar, maddened, augmentful in form, and unattractive in hue, it takes a fall out of his vanity.

What am I," he cries, "that woman should love me?" And he goes out and buys gifts for her that he offers at her feet.

Make man all that's dress has to do in beautiful robes. Let him walk in silk attire. Braid him, ermine-dye him, powder, paint, ruffle and shirr him, and he would do nothing but strut around admiring himself and think himself too good for the best women in the land.

A handsome man is arrogant enough even now, goodness knows, but dress him up and there would be no living in the house with him.

If you want proof that nothing but the clothes keeps men down, turn to the pages of history. Did women have any rights in the days when men wore the ruffs and diamond sunbursts in their shirt fronts and high adorned themselves in jewelry? Now not. Nobody talked then of women voting, or having property rights, or holding executive situations, or being suffragettes. Men were the lords of creation then, and women crept away back and sat down.

What Kind of Girl Does a Man Like Best?

The Spinster-Lady Agrees That a Girl Can Be "Too Good" for Any Man to Endure

"There she sits, looking like a little saint, with her straight bands of golden hair"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WHY isn't Letty K—— more popular?" asked the Spinster Lady of the college graduate.

"Too good," was the brief answer.

"Too good? What do you mean?"

"I mean that no fellow can live up to her standard. There she sits looking like a little saint, with her straight bands of golden hair. It's bewildering to a man to be the part.

"Have you ever noticed those simple little gowns she wears, with a straight sort of collar thing around her neck? They are mighty becoming, but she's too good for me.

"You funny boy! I thought men always admired goodness and worthiness and, stir all that sort of thing," wound up the Spinster Lady somewhat vaguely.

"Oh, come now, Spinster Lady, you know yourself that Letty is awfully hard to live up to. She is so unselfish that she makes other people appear perfect brutes, and I don't know a fellow who would dare fess up to her any of his little weaknesses.

"I tell you, the only Letty among us will have to walk the straight and narrow path if she might forgive his failings, but she will never let him forget that she has forgiven him."

"So, in spite of her good looks, Letty is a failure as regards popularity with men?"

"Yes, on the whole, I think she is. A few men may be able to live up to her standard, but naturally a fellow hates to feel that he is too low-down and good-for-nothing a creature to exist."

"What sort of a girl is your majesty pleased to approve of?"

"Well, I like a girl who is sympathetic, and who realizes that no man is free from mistakes and imperfections. A girl of that sort can help you a whole lot. She need not be pretty, but she has got to be square, and not suspicious that you are trying to deceive her every time her back is turned.

"Poor Letty! I think she tries hard to be good and kind to every one.

"Perhaps she does, but it does not pay to be so good that every one looks a villain by comparison. Letty may be a saint, but men want to marry human, lovable girls—not saints you know."

The Spinster Lady laughed. "I don't think you have any idea what sort of a girl you want to marry. The right girl comes along, and you fall head over heels in love; that's all."

"You don't give us credit for much discernment in the matter."

"My dear boy, discernment has little to do with love."

"What has, then?"

"Oh, different things. Propinquity, magnetism, beauty, and I don't know what all."

"None of these things induces rent love," "Perhaps not, but they create a pretty fair imitation."

"If men were such slaves to beauty, we would all be in love with Letty, for she is a really pretty; there is no denying that."

"That is because your self-esteem is stronger than your love of beauty. You would not be happy with her, because you would feel that she despised you a bit, and that keeps you from falling in love with her. She is too good for any of you; that's the trouble."

"I don't want to feel that my wife is too good for me. I want to feel that we are good friends and companions, and that her entire life is sacrificed to mine. I don't want to sit at her feet; I want to walk hand in hand with her."

"I think you are right, Bobby. The wife that poses as an unselfish, self-sacrificing martyr is not a good thing for a modern. I think more happiness lies in the match where the husband and wife are both mated and stand on an equality."

"That's it! That's the kind of a girl a man likes! one who just intuitively understands, and makes him feel that he and she are the best pals on earth."

Advice to the Lovelorn---By Beatrice Fairfax

MARRY FROM YOUR HOME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl eighteen years of age and am very much in love with a young man of twenty. I have been keeping company with him for the last six months and have every reason for loving him. Will you kindly advise me on this matter, as I am in a great fix. This young man wants me to go away and get married in New York with his folks, and my folks want me to get married in Boston. Now, Miss Fairfax, do you think if he loved me dearly he would please his parents rather than mine?

CONSTANT READER.

MOST certainly you should be married from your own home. If he wants you to live in New York after you are married that is another story, but he cannot expect you to marry from his home as long as you have a home of your own.

RATHER LATE IN THE DAY.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am going with a young lady about a year my junior. We have been going together for the past six months, and I have found out that I do not love this lady, and I have also found out that this young lady loves me dearly. Now, Miss Fairfax, can you please tell me how I can get rid of her, as I feel that I would never be able to live happily with her?

A. B. C.

IT is too bad that you did not learn your own mind before you took her up. As you do not love her, she is much better off without you; but you will appear in rather contemptible light when you break off the friendship. You will get over it, and the sooner you tell her the better for her it will be.

DEAR MRS. PELL:

What form of acknowledgment of wedding gifts is best? What should you say?

I. C. C.

THE correct acknowledgment of a wedding gift should express appreciation of the article, pleasure at its receipt and the thanks of the recipient. A convenient form would be: "Dear Mrs. Scand-So—I wish to thank you for the beautiful silver coffee service which came this morning. I shall use it with great pleasure in my new home, and shall always remember you with the good wishes that came with it. Cordially yours,——."

DEAR MRS. PELL:

How do bride and groom approach the altar at a church wedding, and who gives the groom away?

ANXIOUS.

AT a church wedding the groom and groomsmen enter through the vestry and meet the bride with her attendants at the altar. The groom is not given away. It being the function of the nearest male relatives of the bride to formally give her in marriage to the bridegroom.

Expert Advice on Etiquette

By MARY HUTTON PELL

DEAR MRS. PELL:

How should I let a young man acquaintance know that I would be glad to have him call on me; and is it necessary for him to make a special appointment each time he wishes to call? RAE.

IF a young man asks permission to call you should say that you and your mother are at home on Sunday evenings (or any other evening you may select). Or, if you wish him to call, you might mention the fact that you and your mother are always at home on a given day or evening. After that it is not necessary for him to ask permission to call each time.

DEAR MRS. PELL:

What is the proper dress for a bridesmaid at a church wedding?

ANNOYED.

THE bridesmaid's dress should be of white, and should be made with a train. She should wear a white hat and carry a bouquet of flowers.

The Manicure Lady

As a Kidder, She Finds That She Is Only a Leach Cross

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"GEORGE," said the Manicure Lady, greeting after the figure of a retiring customer, "folks is never too old to learn."

"Who said they was?" asked the Head Barber.

"Nobody that I know of," said the Manicure Lady. "I was just thinking about the going on of the door. I certainly hope he won't ever get his nails did in here again. Of all the impertinence!

"What is your name, fair flower of the forest?' he says to me the minute operations begin. 'Sweeney,' says I, 'Clarice Sweeney.' 'Ah!' he says, 'and the middle name, please?' 'Undine,' says I, 'Clarice Undine Sweeney. I was gave the middle name by a Baptist preacher,' I says to him.

"You see, George, I was on that he was one of them smooth kidders, and I was trying to go along with him the best I knew how. What a chance, what a chance!

"'Sweeney, Sweeney,' he says, kind of thoughtful like. 'I wonder if you are any relation to the Sweeneys out in Rawhide, Nevada. They are lovely folks, the Sweeney girls, respected by every man in the camp, even though their father is serving a life term for poisoning a Mexican,' he says.

"'I never heard of them,' says I. 'The only relations I have is here in the East. I have a aunt over in Bridgeport, Conn. She is a seamstress, and she has the sweetest character! I would do you good to meet her,' I says.

"My Name Is Cushing Carom"

"'I'm sorry you don't know the Rawhide Sweeneys,' he says. 'My name is Cushing Carom,' he says, 'from Brunswick. Perhaps you have heard of the Caroms, but in case you have not, I might explain that our family tree is bigger than a redwood. It seems strange that I never met you before,' he says, 'because I have often been in New York looking after my mining interests, and New York isn't such a big place. Where shall we dine this evening?' he says.

"'I shall dine at home,' says I, 'and you shall dine where you will, or can afford to,' I tells him. 'I never dine with my customers, no matter how well I know them,' says I.

"'Customers, not,' says he. 'And don't ever start it. I didn't ask you to dine with me,' he says, 'because I haven't the price. I was just wondering where you were going to dine, if at all. You working girls are so strange, you know,' he says. 'I take a great deal of my spare time to read about your vicissitudes.'

Had a Chance to Go on Stage

"'That's real sweet of you,' says I. 'You mustn't think I don't get plenty of offers to feed in foreign ports. Last night, for instance, I was to dinner with a vaudeville manager. He wanted me to play in a new mealless sketch he is getting up, called "Almost a Felon; or, The Big League Hangnail."'

"'It ought to be a good sketch,' says the fresh customer. 'Has he engaged any Jo venile to play the hangnail?'

"'You know,' he says, 'I used to be some actor. I was in that great French drama called "The Orchestra Chair." The critics said that I played the part of the chair with much reserve.

"'That was a swell play, Genevieve,' he says. 'In the first act the curtain goes up and shows the interior of a theatre, and a miniature stage, and a German orchestra. The chair in which the villain sat was right near the footlights. I was the chair, and the villain came in and sat on me all through the four-act show. The villain was a good actor, but he weighed as much as 86 bunkhorst, the Human Freight Car. But the drama of to-day is not the drama of then,' he says, kind of sighing.

Found She Was a Leach Cross

"I can't remember half of the stuff he pulled, George, but before the kidding match was half over I realized that he was the Packy McFarland and I was the Leach Cross. It served me right at that.

"You know just as well as I do, George, that a girl has no business trying to get back at strange customers. Imagine what a swell chance I would have if Jim Morton came in here to have his nails did or Jim Thornton.

"After this, when a strange gent squares off at the table and holds out his paddles, I'm going to switch my answers and keep my face folded up. It's no use trying to be a Jack of all trades, and a Manicure Lady can't be a comedian."

"That's true," admitted the Head Barber. "I was talking to Harry Bulger when I was shaving him the other day, and happened to mention that I was tired of barbering. I told him that I had often wished to change places with some good comedian, but he told me to cling to my razor.

"But gents like Mr. Bulger gets good coin," said the Manicure Lady.

"I know," said the Head Barber, "but just remember that I've got a steady job."

Romance and Humor — DAILY COMPLETE STORY

He Was So Interesting

WHEN I came back to town the other day after my Summer in the mountains, I was ready to make a vow never again to go away. All the way home I had been thinking things over, and being strictly honest with myself, and the result was disappointing.

There hadn't been a single, solitary man all Summer that was worth while; for that I had even liked especially! And this in the face of having six of my best friends announce their engagements last Spring! And I couldn't understand why.

Everybody had been crazy enough over the professor and the man from New York and the young millionaire two cows nearly a whole county near the hotel, and the Chicago broker and the medical student with a family that is positively indigo in color, it has such a quantity of blue blood. As they appeared in turn on the horizon I had spells of thinking I liked them, but I grew tired of every one of them.

It wasn't even worth the trouble to try to make the other girls jealous. That didn't seem at all like me—of course. I don't mean I make a practice of getting girls jealous, but still I'm only human—and I couldn't quite figure it out.

I had an awful minute when I wondered if I could be getting old and blase, but that nobody by any stretch of the imagination could call twenty-two an age that it wasn't that. And it wasn't that I was tired, either, for I had come back as well and brown as a berry and weighed ten pounds more than usual and ate like a horse and felt like one.

Nevertheless, I had not had what you could strictly call a good time all Summer.

I began to get blue. Life was not going to be worth living if all the future was to be like the past. I began to look at myself in the face of a person who does not take an interest in things and is always going to get like all the other faces I see—a feeling as bored as I felt. No message would ever come that kind of wireless.

The idea of a stupid Winter in New York made me want to jump into the river right slow, yet I couldn't think of a single place I wanted to go. Last Winter had been so different, and it was all Timothy's fault that this one would not be.

Timothy was the most convenient person imaginable to have around, for he was always cheerful if you weren't and he had a quiet sort knack of appearing with theatre tickets and party invitations just when you most wanted them, although you always wanted them when Timothy was the man who had them, provided you had good seats.

Why, I didn't mind his being around all the while any more than I minded the wall paper, and it was distinctly annoying when he requested me to marry him and then to grow angry and hurt when I wouldn't.

He said there wasn't a mite of sense in my explanation that one never should be married a man one had known always and was so well acquainted with. So he went to Chicago and said good-by forever. That just showed the awful selfishness of men, because I had grown so used to having him on hand that it left me all at sea.

I wasn't a particle in love with Timothy, but I did like him immensely. So much, that the situation was, he always fitted in, and this coming Winter ahead of me with not him loomed up rather grim and forlorn. Being home for a week was not worth while, so why was a very fine fellow.... I like the appearance of his shoulders and the way he shakes them when he gets excited with a golfing, and his profile and his smile. When he smiles at you, no matter if your back is slowly but surely and the custard pie has curdled in the oven and your new gown has come home a failure, you feel that the world is all right and Timothy will straighten out the mess somehow.

There wasn't a man at the hotel this Summer as good looking as Timothy. Besides, I never got tired of him. I simply hated him for moving to Chicago and was thankful I didn't have to pass the rest of my days with a man so inconsiderate.

That evening, just as I walked out on the front steps at home to look at the asphalt street and detest it because it wasn't a country road, Timothy came up the steps.

I hadn't laid eyes on him since last March, so I was too surprised to object when he walked right in and, taking both my hands, drew me back of the wrought-iron vines and kissed me! I expect all the neighbors saw it, but I didn't care.

He held me there much longer than he couldn't stand another minute to be away from me—and I understand just how he felt. I understood lots of other things, too, in that hour, the chief of them being why I hadn't cared anything about the interesting men at the lake.

It was because Timothy is so infinitely more interesting.

Charcoal Kills Bad Breath

Whether From Decay in the Stomach or Teeth, and Will Stop Stomach Gases.

Willow Charcoal Best For Use.

Charcoal has been used for absorbing foul odors and neutralizing noxious gases for centuries.

Dupont, the powder manufacturer, learned that willow shoots two to three years of age made the best charcoal. It is most porous.

Fetid breath, whether from stomach or teeth, pyrosis (or gastric pain), diarrhoea and constipation simply cannot exist under the action of charcoal.

Charcoal oxidizes all gases, or in other words changes foul smelling odors into oxygen, thereby doing away with all foulness and rendering even such gases beneficial to the system by giving it more oxygen. The lungs purify the blood with oxygen from the air. Dying patients have oxygen administered to their system artificially, and live for days under this treatment.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made from willow shoots and sweet honey. Thus they are palatable, strong and natural. No medicine is used whatever, but the peculiar Stuart process gives them a decided charm and efficiency which endears them to all consumers.

One may use them as one likes. Eating one every once in a while insures pure breath, while the common method is to eat two or three after meals and at bed time. They work very fast and their use is a most excellent habit to form. In a short time you will learn that their influence has improved bowel action wonderfully; simply by giving to the bowel a waste product to carry off that has no gaseous formation to kill and destroy its nerves and membranes.

Every druggist carries Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges, price 25 cents, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

WOMEN TAKEN FROM COURT IN COLLAPSE

Brooklyn Girls in Hysterics When Arraigned Before Judge Ely.

HELD WITH MEN IN $800

There was a lot of excitement and much hysteria and weeping in the second session of the Municipal Court, before Judge Ely, today, when the two Brooklyn young women, Gertrude Kiehn and Loretto McCadden, who came to Boston with Moran and Duncan, the Dorchester highwaymen, were arraigned with the men, charged with violation of the statutes. The two men, Joseph Moran and William Duncan, who are held under $5,000 bail each for their alleged attempt to hold up and rob Ernest J. Jenkins in Edward Everett square several days ago, were brought into the Municipal Court.

The women were in the dock awaiting them. As soon as Duncan appeared, Loretta McCadden began to scream and shout.

"Oh, Billy, Billy," she cried, "take me home, take me away. Oh, judge, please let me go to him."

"Joe, oh, Joe," sobbed the other woman, "why did you come here? Take us home, take us home."

Judge Ely managed to get order long enough to say that by the request of counsel he would hold each of the four in $500 bail for the Grand Jury. Then he ordered all to jail again.

This started another outburst, and the McCadden girl fell forward, apparently in a dead swoon. Her companion threw herself on the floor, and both were carried out by the policemen. Neither of the male prisoners showed any trace of emotion.

GERALDINE FARRAR ENGAGED TO SCOTTI

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Americans in Berlin insist that Geraldine Farrar is engaged to marry Scotti, the famous baritone, who have sailed for New York on the North German Lloyd steamship Bremen. Cursed being their fellow-passenger.

Robert J. McCartney, who was the New England president of the iron-molders when Eben S. Draper broke his pledge to the molders and ordered his employes to withdraw from the union, says:

Every workingman who wishes to make his protest against Eben S. Draper most effective will vote for William N. Osgood, the candidate of the Independence League, for Governor.

WOMAN AND 2 CHILDREN HIT BY CAR

Hurdy Gurdy Figures in Trolley Smash at Dedham; Victims Will Recover.

Special to the Boston American.

DEDHAM, Oct. 29.—In a collision between an electric car and a hurdy-gurdy drawn by a horse, Mrs. Casido Velate, an Italian woman, and her two infant children were hurled fifty feet last night and almost killed. With her husband the woman has been going from town to town, usually every week in a tent, but the weather was so bad last night that they pulled into Washington street and the husband went into an Italian tenement to seek lodgings for the night.

The mother and two children, the oldest a year old, were on the seat in front. An electric car struck the outfit in the rear, smashing it and throwing the mother and children far away. They were unconscious when picked up. They were taken into the tenement and cared for by their fellow countrymen and a physician. All will recover.

The collision happened near High street. The car was crowded with passengers. Several screamed as it leaped, but no panic happened, and there was much excitement. Scores of excited Italians gathered around and wanted to lynch the motorman, but the police drove them back into their hovels, where they gathered, and from windows shook their fists and yelled impressions at the man they blamed for the accident.

SWEETHEARTS DEAD IN PACT OF SUICIDE?

Police Now Believe Greenfield Couple May Have Ended Lives Together.

WARNINGS IN LETTERS

GREENFIELD, Oct. 29.—Letters which go far to prove that a suicide pact existed between Benjamin E. Gaines and his sweetheart, Harriet E. Wing, who were found dead from bullet wounds this morning, have been discovered in the Gaines home. The letters only add to the mystery, as there is no known reason for even contemplating suicide as the letters indicate.

One of Miss Wing's letters contains the statement that she was "sick of living" and the expression "I have a mind to go."

A letter by Gaines contains several specific instructions to relatives "what to do if anything should happen."

The young people had parted but had made up, and everybody who knew them supposed they had arranged all differences and agreed to begin life all over.

Miss Wing was shot three times and Gaines once in the right temple. The police think this may indicate that she shot her first by agreement and then killed himself. Another theory is that Gaius, during a quarrel with his sweetheart, became desperate, drew a revolver and at close range fired three shots into her body, then turned the gun against himself and sent a bullet crashing into his brain. Miss Wing was dead when the tragedy was discovered two hours after the shooting and Gaines died a short time later at the Franklin County Hospital.

The couple had been sweethearts since last Spring, when Miss Wing came here from Hebbers Falls, Vt. Early last night Gaines called for her and they went out.

Miss Wing was an attractive young woman and had a bright and cheerful disposition. Gaines's parents say he had been dispirited of late.

Tell Another Woman

We do you a kindness when we urge you to try Van Camp's. So, when we succeed, and you begin to enjoy this dish, please pass the favor on. Tell some other woman what she misses, just as we told you.

A business like this isn't purely commercial. It renders enduring service.

We have spent 47 years in learning to perfect one dish. The result is that beans—which are 84% nutriment—have been given a new deliciousness.

Millions of homes now enjoy these beans. Millions of dollars are saved by them. For Van Camp's Beans, to a large extent, are taking the place of meat.

So we ask you to help this good work along, when you learn how good beans can be.

We may tell you our story over and over before we induce you to buy. But, when you get the first can, you are surprised and delighted. Then let others know.

We depend for at least one-half of our trade on one woman telling another.

Please remember that millions of women still bake their beans in the old way. They spend hours in the process, yet the dish that results is not very inviting.

They bake in dry heat because they lack the live steam. The result is, the top beans are crisped, while the beans in the center are not even half baked.

The beans are mushy and soggy because the skins have been broken. The heat of the oven is insufficient, so the beans, in large part, are indigestible. They ferment and form gas.

The result is a heavy food, hard to digest. So they serve it, usually, only once a week.

Please let them know how we bake.

We bake in live steam, so no beans are crisped, no skins are broken. They are baked until they are mealy, yet they are nutty because they are whole.

Our ovens are heated to 245 degrees, and we bake in small parcels so the full heat goes through. We apply, to every bean about twice the heat that gets to the center of your baking dish.

Thus the particles are separated so the digestive juices can get to them. The beans are all nourishment; they don't ferment and form gas.

Then we bake the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together, and get our delicious blend.

Tell your friends how different the result is from the beans they bake at home.

Van Camp's BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE

PORK AND BEANS

About three times a week you ought to serve Van Camp's. You'll find that people don't tire of beans when served in the Van Camp way. And think what it means, when you are busy, to have meals ready cooked.

Don't think, when you learn how good are Van Camp's, that other ready-baked beans are like them.

In the first place, there is a vast difference in beans. We use only the choicest Michigan beans. They are picked over by hand to give us only the whitest, the plumpest, the fullest-grown.

We frequently pay, for such beans as these, seven and eight times what common beans would cost.

We spend five times as much to make our tomato sauce as common sauce costs ready-made. We use whole tomatoes ripened on the vines—not tomatoes picked green—not scraps from a canning factory.

That's why our sauce has that sparkling zest which Nature alone can give.

It pays to get the best beans, for the best are cheap enough. Give your people beans so good that they'll want them often, for beans are far cheaper than meat.

If somebody says "My beans are as good as Van Camp's," buy a can and see. Serve both brands together and let your people decide. We are willing to leave it to them.

PACKY READY TO MEET BATTLER IN LONG BOUT

M'FARLAND WANTS NELSON TO BET $5,000 ON SIDE AND GO FORTY-FIVE ROUNDS.

By TAD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Packy McFarland says that if Battling Nelson refuses to meet him in a twenty-five-round go he will meet the Dane in a forty-five-round bout providing the latter posts $5,000 to go as a side bet.

Pretty strong stuff, that! Packy was sore yesterday when he sprung it, but had fire in his eyes just the same.

"I'm only nineteen years old," piped the Chicago whirlwind, "but I know that Battling Nelson is just as easy as any of the other lightweights, and I'd rather lose my money being beaten by him than anyone else I know. Why, I boxed with him twice in Chicago, four rounds each time, and he was like a kid in my arms. On the level, Gans must have gone back an awful lot if Nelson outboxed him.

"Oh, I know Nelson all right. He was a fine friend of mine for a time, but I think he was stalling so that I would not bother him about a fight. He probably had a bug in his head that some time I might want to. Well, now I want to, and I don't care how long it is. I want to be champion now or never, and the sooner he comes out and offers to fight me the quicker I'll be champion.

"Does beat me in condition? Say, I can trim that fellow every day in the week. I'm no boomer, you know, and I never smoke. I'm in condition all the time. That's my business to keep in condition, and I'll be that way until I cop the title. Just shake the Dane up a bit and see if he wants a go or not.

"Harry Gilmore went over to Stapleton, S. I., yesterday, to find me training quarters and I'll go over Wednesday. Murphy boy, fight? I don't know where we will box. McGuigan is coming over to see us and I don't know how it will come out. Say some thing about Nelson, will you? I want him sore.

* * *

Johnny White of the National Club, which is to hold the O'Brien-Langford go Friday night, says that his club will live strictly to the law's requirements. "We have enough legitimate members, and see no reason why the police should interfere," quoth Langford and they feel the same way about it, especially when they lingered a bit on the dues collected. Hey?

* * *

Jack Goodman was up last night, looking fine and rosy. Jack is a nifty bit of a lad, and knows it, too. He says that he thinks he will be the boy to stop the career of McFarland of Chicago, but wants just a few more go's to get warmed up on.

* * *

Would you believe that both Kid McCoy's thumbs are still swollen from the scrap which they have? The kid says that he is as sore with the judgment of distance that night that before he had fought a round he landed the punches. He never hits with that thumb sidewise, but punch he does in a straight line. He turns his hand just before landing—that is why he claims called the concerted jeff. The other night he was about as wild as a drunken sharpshooter, and is still rubbing the sore thumbs.

For Sale—Two beautiful drawings of Bert Keyes. Both done in pen and ink and already framed. Will sell them at a sacrifice. James Kelly, Rue de Footpath 13.

Say, did you see Mike Donlin last night in his new dance? He's a screamer. Talk about actress. Oh, say! I'm not trying to say the way they tossed them to the old boy.

BOTHNER WAS TOO MUCH FOR WILLIAMS

George Bothner of New York, lightweight champion wrestler, defeated Bartley Williams of Illinois, announced as the Western champion, in one of the fastest and most exciting wrestling bouts of the year, at the Columbia. Williams, who looked easily twenty pounds heavier than Bothner, agreed to throw the latter twice in an hour and to concede the match to his opponent if he secured a fall. Time and again Williams apparently had Bothner by an tight place, but the agile champ managed to wriggle himself clear. Finally, after twenty-three minutes of swift work, Williams secured a half-nelson and body hold, and although he did not quite get Bothner on the shoulders, his manage ment brought a fall rather than have his man injured.

The second bout saw Tim Donovan of Williams. Bothner was the aggressor from the start, and his clever head work quickly proved sure holds evidently worried his heavier opponent. In breaking away the half nelson and leg hold, Bothner secured a body hold that Williams was unable to break, and he went down amid the yells of the fans from the Southern metropolis. The rules were unquestionably with too smaller man, the time of the last bout was thirty minutes.

It was one of the most scientific and cleanest bouts ever seen at the Columbia, and the large crowd was on edge from start to finish. Bothner's showing was remarkable, considering the size and speed of his opponent, and he clearly proved that his claim to the title of lightweight champion is no empty boast.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Billy Sunday, former professional baseball player and present noted evangelist, has selected an all-Indiana team. Here is the makeup: Catcher, Spalding, Bush and Allen; first baseman, Chance; second baseman, Hoffman; third baseman, Hinkle; shortstop, Mayfield; outfielders, Bruce, Wilds, Jack Johnson and Waddell; pitchers, Kling, Brenahan and Sullivan; catchers.

Johnny Kling, the sensational backstop of the Cubs, threatens to desert Frank Chance's flock by trying to buy a controlling interest in the Kansas City American Association club, and if successful will devote his attention to the managerial end of the game. He has made good with Chicago in both departments.

It is generally known that Bill Hogle, third baseman, who was released from the Chicago Nationals some time ago, has been signed by the Indianapolis club of the American Association club, and if present plans carry will be in the game next season. He has made good with the Indianapolis team.

Detroit will train next Spring at San Antonio, Tex. The champion Tigers will not be in camp of weeks at this southwestern resort, working their way gradually to Texas some latter ground with the big leagues of life. The Giants, of course, will be in the hands of Matty Stallings and Mordecai Brown are already negotiating a series between their clubs and Detroit.

Joe Dunlavy, second baseman of the Washington team, has been signed by the Cincinnati Reds and will go to California. The pair will make the trip to the Orient with Pat Fabens all-stars, who have already been installed favorites for the National Concession for playing against the League champions. Dunlavy's release by the Nats was left out in the cold.

Ed Phelps, the veteran catcher who has kicked around among big league and minor league clubs for the past fifteen years, has signed to play the game all Los Angeles recently. Manager Tommy Dowd has been signed to play third baseman and will be second to the Southern by 1909. It is understood that Phelps will be the backstop for his ten.

Harry Willett, Hughie Jennings's star outfielder, has been stung by the "rubber-necking" bug, and will spend the Winter in Europe. He crossed the river to Windsor from Detroit on the steamer Mrs. Emma Jennings, of Bull Quebec. Monsoor he submitted the parents of the lad who had gone West to correct the mistake.

Manager Hughie Jennings of the Detroit Tigers has written to Mayor Thompson of Detroit, a candidate for re-election.

TAD JONES SEES FLAWS IN THE TIGERS' PLAY

BY TAD JONES,
Coach of Yale Back Field.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 29.—Princeton had a real tryout when she met Syracuse last Saturday, especially on the defensive. The work of the Princeton men can be criticised, and very strongly. Although at times a flash of great strength was shown, at no time was Princeton's goal line seriously threatened, though the whole game was played by her own territory. The Tiger team had a very decided faculty of bracing within her own twenty-five-yard line, and the attack of the Syracuse men, powerful as it was, could not break down the orange and black defence.

Time and time again Syracuse was in position for the kill, but within striking distance, but each time Princeton held and the orange and blue came out with the ball across for a touchdown. In the middle of the field the Princeton defence was very loose and ragged. Stein, the fast Syracuse fullback, tore through the Tiger line on delayed passes and plunges for ten, fifteen and twenty yards at a time, and was only brought down by the men in the back field.

On offence, the Princeton men hardly had an opportunity to show just what they could do. The Syracuse tackles and forwards were through and broke up the plays before they were well started. There seemed to be no power in the runners and Black attack, though at times the ball was carried well. Princeton made no gains of consistent gains, as did Syracuse. The offence did not appear well developed; power was lacking.

The passing of tackle did especially good work for Princeton. Case at centre was very nervous in passing the ball to the quarter back and to his kicker. The Tiger ends were quick on down field work and speed. Last year Wister and Brown specialized in high standard plays and set Princeton ends, but this year the coaches are having difficulty in finding men to fill their positions.

Both Reed and Welch are very slow in getting down under kicks, and together they made very poor work of it. More than once they were blocked when Horr carried the ball from Princeton's own territory for runs.

In the back field Princeton did not show anything which appeared especially good. The men who started, Read, Cote and Cunningham, are very excellent in their play. It is true that they were always hurried in the execution of their plays, but even when they once got started they seemed to lack the power. Read, like Captain Pattison in the Yale-Army game, was guilty of interfering with the quarterback. Dawson, at quarter, filled the position of Captain Dillon very ably for the time that he was in the game. He was not as fast as Dillon, however. During the few minutes Captain Dillon played, the Princeton men responded to his signals and played with new life. His very presence seemed to encourage the men and inspire them to great effort, and several good gains were made.

There was lack of power in Princeton's play—there was lack of team work. The game with Syracuse did the Tigers a world of good. It pointed out weaknesses and faults—and all of them can and will be remedied.

A. E. BLISS WILL HEAD MASS. STATE AUTO ASSO.

VARIOUS COMMITTEES MAKE FAVORABLE REPORTS AT THE ANNUAL MEETING.

By J. C. KERRISON.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts State Automobile Association, held at the rooms of the Bay State Automobile Association, gave the chairmen of the several standing committees an opportunity to rehearse their work of the past season. These reports were eminently satisfactory, and in every case showed that great progress had been made. Chairman L. R. Speare of the Legislative Committee told of the good work done by that committee during the past year, and especially during the last session of the Legislature. In defeating the recommended rate was 2501 minutes and 7 seconds, or an average 29 minutes and 7 seconds to the lap. The actual time for each lap was not far from this average. The car driven by Bourque made eight laps in 232 minutes and 28 seconds, or an average of 27 minutes and 40 seconds.

* * *

Despite the fact that the receipts from the Vanderbilt cup race totaled over $40,000, the managers of the Long Island Motor Parkway claim that the expenses attendant on the opening races over the Long Island Motor Parkway sweepstakes on November 10 and the enormous additional expenses of Saturday's race have eaten up all of the profits, and as a result the post A. A. A., instead of having a surplus of over $10,000 to divide, as they did in 1904, will be asked to make up a deficit.

As a result of this little financial complication the relations between the Vanderbilt cup committee and the officials of the A. A. A. are said to be stretched almost to the breaking point.

WOMEN ARE THE SHREWDEST PIANO BUYERS

We find that women do the most investigating, the most looking around. They are better bargain hunters than men, and in most cases are better judges of bargain values—But when they get up here and see the piano bargains on our sacrifice floor they have sense enough to go no further—They have never in all their lives seen such reckless cutting of prices as they see in our fight with the Piano Trust—It's seldom that you can't save from $100 to $150 on any of the standard makes up here, and women who call know it—because they have looked around and they know.

Turning Your Coat Is Rather Dangerous

You Are Apt to Turn Away Friends With Each Turn of the Coat

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

The leader is the man who stays in one place, at least long enough to let his friends know where they can find him.

The man who moves from one spot to another, runs away from every place and every idea as soon as he hears some dog bark, is no LEADER—he's a TURNCOAT.

This newspaper supported Bryan at one time, it is not supporting him now.

While you are thinking this over, don't forget to remember other agencies that were supporting Bryan once and are not supporting him now and others that were attacking Bryan once and that are supporting him now.

You know Herman Ridder, the notorious enemy of union labor, the gentleman who asks for free paper for himself and whose convictions go with the free paper. Do you know Ridder? Well, Ridder was against Bryan when we supported him. Ridder was wrong then.

Ridder is with Bryan to-day while we oppose him. RIDDER IS WRONG NOW.

RIDDER HASN'T CHANGED. We haven't changed.

YOU haven't changed, if you are a consistent man.

BRYAN IS THE MAN WHO HAS CHANGED. He is the man who has gone away from consistency to inconsistency, from workingmen and their friends to such men as Ridder and Mack and Delancey Nicoll and Parker.

Do you know that every one of the men now wanting Bryan, now working for him, from Haskell, the supposed rascal, to Archbold, the exposed briber, were all against Bryan formerly?

Mr. Bryan has made in the turning of his coat a fine collection of new friends. They include August Belmont, who contributed to his campaign fund. THE MAN THAT BROKE UP EVERY UNION IN THE NEW YORK STREET CAR SYSTEM.

They include eminent lawyers of the trusts. They have taken the measure of Bryan and his newest set of opinions, and they think that he is about the man they want.

If you want to know why some of his old supporters have abandoned Bryan, find out what kind of NEW supporters he has gathered around him. Do you think any consistent radical could support a man that has suddenly earned the approval of Haskell, Archbold, Belmont, Mack, Ridder—WHY DO THOSE MEN SUPPORT BRYAN? Their reason for supporting him ARE OUR REASONS FOR OPPOSING HIM.

Vote for Bryan and you vote for hard times in which organized labor will be disorganized and wages reduced.

Vote for Bryan and you vote for scarce money during which those of you that have saved a few dollars will have many chances to spend them.

Vote for Bryan and you will regret it for four years AT LEAST, whether your interest lies merely in material prosperity, which is a pretty low interest, or in better government and sincere and intelligent radicalism.

Bryan elected would make fools of the intelligent radicals and bring them into contempt. He would serve admirably the purposes of his newly-found collection of friends—intelligent men those new friends are.

Archbold and Haskell may be criminals, but they are no fools. Ridder is what he is, but he is no fool. They know, when they see him, an individual that will pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

Commiserate, Kind-Hearted Mr. Keliher

He NEVER Could Stand It to See a Poor, Unfortunate Corporation Injured

Mr. John A. Keliher, who is asking for a fourth term in Congress, has had a career in the State as well as in the national government. He has a record in the State Legislature as well as in Congress. It is a bad record, but it proved a good prophesy of his later record in Congress, and as a prophesy it is interesting to those citizens of the Ninth Congressional District who must decide whether or not he is to have the extraordinary honor of a fourth election to Congress.

Mr. Keliher was in the State Legislature eight years ago. To those who say that eight years is a long time to hark back over we answer that we are not conducting a criminal investigation, but are producing evidence to show Mr. Keliher's unfitness for the office he seeks now for the fourth time.

The injury a public servant does a community by unfaithfulness in office may, in the lapse of time, be forgiven, but it ought never to be forgotten if it serves to throw light upon subsequent similar conduct.

Mr. Keliher's record in the State Legislature THROWS LIGHT upon Mr. Keliher's record in Congress. For this reason we shall proceed to state some. We haven't the space to state all of his bad votes while a member of the Massachusetts House and Senate.

Mr. Keliher VOTED AGAINST compelling the Boston Elevated Railway to furnish its cars with vestibules.

For many years some citizens with a few drops of the milk of human kindness in their system sought legislation to make this wealthy corporation provide its employes with decent and human conditions. To cover their platforms with glass was not an unreasonable demand when it meant saving an army of 7,000 men from ten hours' agony each day in the Winter elements on the front and rear platforms of the cars.

Even the children remember the days when the icicles hung down from the nose and lips of the motormen, when they stood all day long on their feet with great fur coats that bowed their shoulders.

Mr. Keliher AGREED WITH THE CORPORATION that it was too poor to vestibule its cars.

Time passed and enough men were found less tender of the corporation pocket nerve than Mr. Keliher, and the corporation was compelled to furnish vestibules. The corporation is not yet bankrupt.

What was the motive that prompted Mr. Keliher to deny to so large a body of workingmen just a little human treatment?

All citizens in these days know enough about the methods of corporations like the Boston Elevated Railroad, to form their own opinions of Mr. Keliher's motive. The American ventures none.

Mr. Keliher VOTED TO SURRENDER the Boston & Albany Railroad to the New York Central.

Organized labor and intelligent business interests all protested against this betrayal of the Commonwealth. The evils which would follow the New York Central control were predicted then.

Mr. Keliher voted after the fullest warning. Events have proved those warnings true. The management of this fine old Massachusetts railroad by the foreign corporation has been an acknowledged scandal and outrage, denounced by every public authority within the scope of whose duties this matter came.

Mr. Keliher DID MORE than vote for the surrender of the Massachusetts road to the New York Central. He proved to be just as tender of the New York Central's pocket as he was of the Boston Elevated's.

He voted AGAINST a provision in the lease which prohibited the New York Central from reducing wages on the Boston & Albany after it took possession of the road.

Just and commiserate Mr. Keliher. You would see no wrong done to the poor and the weak. No unfortunate corporations would go bankrupt if you could help it.

Where Osgood Stood in 1904

His Bill, Introduced Then, Would Give Labor Unions the Right to Enforce Their Own Rules

We have been requested by several readers to reprint the minority report to the Legislature in favor of the peaceful picketing bill rendered in 1904 by William N. Osgood, who is now a candidate for Governor.

Following is Mr. Osgood's minority report entire:

I have requested the permission of my fellow-members of the committee to insert an explanation of my attitude upon the single subject of injunctions, which relates to matters in addition to those unanimously indorsed by the committee.

A sense of duty, coupled with a deference to convictions firm if erroneous, impels me to attempt to embody my ideas upon the same in a proposed bill for legislative action.

Many lawyers of eminence believe that our courts have not gone too far in issuing injunctions in industrial disputes, and that no legislation is demanded; that any apparent ambiguity or inconsistency in the application of the principles of equity in the preservation of property rights when compared with the preservation of personal rights will ultimately be corrected by the courts themselves, independently of legislation.

Other lawyers of equal eminence, as well as some judges, believe that the Legislature should declare what personal rights of the citizens should not be enjoined, and that the powers of the courts of equity in regard to issuing injunctions in industrial disputes should be defined.

In a recent case, Plant v. Woods, 176 Mass., 492, Justice Holmes plainly intimated that the remedy for industrial disputes should be left with the Legislature, if that body should see fit to interfere; and in Vegelahn v. Guntner, 167 Mass., 92, he used the following language: "But there is a notion, which latterly has been insisted on a good deal, that a combination of persons to do what any one of them lawfully might do by himself will make the otherwise lawful conduct unlawful."

The late Chief Justice Field in the case last referred to said: "In England the rights of employers and employed, with reference to strikes, boycotts and other similar movements, have not in general been left to be worked out by the courts from common law principles, but statutes from time to time have been passed defining what may and what may not be permitted. The administration of those statutes largely has been through the criminal courts." "If acts complained of do not amount to intimidation or force, it is not in all respects clear what are lawful and what are not lawful at common law."

It may be urged that these words just quoted are from dissenting opinions, and do not state the law. It should not be forgotten, indeed, that from criticism spring all progress, all reform.

Without intimating that the power of our courts in issuing injunctions in industrial disputes has been abused or is in danger of being abused, it may nevertheless be of the utmost importance that certain personal rights of our citizens, including both employers and employes, should be defined, and that the possibility of their future infringement should be guarded against.

Property rights are undoubtedly and properly protected by the courts of equity, as stated in this report. But should not the personal rights of both employer and employed be also protected? I do not refer to personal rights to do wrong, because there can be no such rights, but to personal rights to do lawful and peaceful acts.

Therefore I respectfully suggest the following bill:

AN ACT RELATING TO CERTAIN PERSONAL RIGHTS OF CITIZENS.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Section 1. It shall be lawful in this Commonwealth for citizens to assemble in places not forbidden by law or municipal ordinances, for the peaceable discussion of grievances which they may have against other citizens; peaceably to persuade and attempt to persuade other citizens to do any lawful act; peaceably in lawful places and at lawful times to apprise others of any dispute or difference which has arisen between them and others concerning the price of their services or commodities; and while seeking to accomplish said results so do any and all acts which are not directly connected with a breach of the peace, and which are neither criminal nor actionable at law, or which do not directly cause irreparable injury to the property or persons of others.

Section 2. Any act which it is lawful for an individual citizen to do acting alone in seeking to secure a fair and reasonable compensation for personal services shall not be unlawful if done by two or more individuals acting together for said purpose; provided, that the provisions of this act shall not be construed to apply to the acts of two or more individuals or corporations in respect to regulating the price of commodities; or to regulating the rates of transportation within this Commonwealth of commodities or persons by common carriers; or the rates of transmission of intelligence, heat, light and power, as distinguished from personal services.

WILLIAM N. OSGOOD.

If this bill, recommended by Mr. Osgood in 1904, had been enacted into law by the Legislature, such a decision as that rendered by the majority of the Supreme Court last Monday, denying to labor unions the right to enforce their rules by fines, would have been impossible.
